Operational Narrative of 2 June 1944 Mission

SUBJECT: Report of the Operations Officer, Mission of Morning, 2 June 1944.

100TH GROUP

1. General Narrative: Twenty one aircraft including three spares and one PFF aircraft, departed this base in formation at 0900 - 0913 hours. By 1000 hours the group had formed over base at 12,000 feet. Individual ascent was employed up to 12,000 feet. The 100th Bombardment Group flew as the high group in the 13th "A" Combat Wing.

After assembly the group climbed to 25,000 feet and proceeded to the point of wing rendezvous which was at Felixstowe. We reached this point at 1109 hours, two minutes early, at an altitude of 25,000 feet but due to heavy contrails and cirrus clouds the groups were scattered and it was necessary to continue the climb. At 1121 hours we altered course at 52 12 N, 00 42 E at an altitude of 27,900 feet. At 1146 hours we altered course at 51 02 N, 00 35 E for Beachy Head, altitude 28,000 feet. At Beachy Head, our I.P. at 1152 hours. At 1204 hours we altered course at 50 47 N, 01 35 E, slightly short of target. No bombs were released, due to failure of PFF equipment. The "Mickey" equipment went out 30 seconds before the bomb release line was reached. At 1218 hours, altered course at 50 22 N, 0036 E, altitude 23,000 feet. We entered the English coast at 50 48 N, 00 20 E at 1226 hours,; over base at 1320 hours and landing at 1324 - 1338 hours.

2. Aircraft not Attacking: Twenty one aircraft including three spares and one PFF aircraft, departed this base in formation, as shown on the attached chart marked "After Assembly". Twenty one aircraft were dispatched. This includes the one PFF aircraft.

Aircraft #42-31256 returned early, leaving formation at 1130 hours, over 51 33 N, 00 35 E, at 27,200 feet.

Spare aircraft #42-97393 returned early, leaving formation at 1038 hours, over 51 10 N, 01 40 E, at 21,000 feet.

Spare aircrafts #42-30152 and #42-102621 returned early as there were no vacancies to fill in the formation. Leaving formation at 1150 hours, over Beachy Head, at 25,000 feet.

Sixteen aircraft and one PFF aircraft flew over the target, but did not attack.

Aircraft #42-38047 jettisoned six of its bombs, at 50 46 N, 01 05 E.

3. Lost Aircraft: None.

390TH "B" GROUP

1. General Narrative: This organization was ordered to furnish nine aircraft to fly with the 390th "B" Group. Nine aircraft departed this base in formation at 0848 - 0853 hours. The 100th Group flew as the high squadron in the 390th "B" Group and also furnished the three spares for this group. Group assembly was made at 1016 $\frac{1}{2}$  hours, over Aldeburgh, at 11,500 feet.

For route flown refer to lead Navigator's narrative (390th "B" Group.)

2. Aircraft Not Attacking: Nine aircraft including three spares departed this base in formation, as shown on the attached chart marked "After Assembly". Nine aircraft were dispatched.

Aircraft #42-102958 returned early, leaving formation East of London. This aircraft lost the group formation in the clouds.

Spare aircrafts #42-102657 and #42-97154 returned early, as there were no vacancies to fill in the formation. Leaving formation over Beachy Head.

Thus six aircraft attacked the target.

3. Lost Aircraft: None.

SECRET

AN EIGHTH AAF BOMBER STATION, England — It was worth living a life time to what i saw today. Like lots of other Americans, I have been living for this day.

Everybody in my crew felt the suspense while we were climbing for altitude over England. We were anxious to get over France.

Fortunately, we could look down from our altitude of 15,000 feet on what was taking place just off the coast of France and on the beaches. There were so many barges and other craft in t he bay that we couldn't count all of them. Farther out in t he channel we could see a number of large warships. They fired sporadically.

What a job that they had done on the Beach. There were bomb pits everywhere. Some of the bomb craters were large— I remember it looked like pictures of the craters on the moon—and they extended like a ribbon on the coast. I have seen something to remember of 23 previous missions, but nothing like this.

In one town that I Saw, just off the coast, it appeared so completely deserted that I don't t hink there was n even a cat on the street. We saw other places in the vicinity just like that. In all, we spotted seven villages where we could tell our aircraft had been earlier in the day.

We had a ringside seat on some of this air bombing. A formation of Fortresses near us was dropping its bombs on another city. I'll have to admit, I felt thrilled. We saw there bombs fall, and hit. At this point, the bombing was visual.

It was a tribute to our Air Force that we were carrying on like that in the face of several bad weather fronts. We saw multitudes of allied planes of every description, headed in every direction. The RAF was in ample force, but we saw more American planes.

SECRET

We observed fighters carrying on sweeps below us, and at the same time other formations were to the right of us, the left of us, and above us.

No where was the Luftwaffe challenging us on our way in to the target, or coming back. Maybe they were elsewhere, but our attacks were carried out unhindered by the enemy fighters. We expected it might be different.

Not a puff of flak came up to us at the target. We dropped our bombs, and on our way back saw only a few bursts. The anti-aircraft gunners shooting at us, then quit suddenly. They were certainly under par.

My tail gunner, Staff Sergeant Earl E. Evans, of Catawissa, Pa., called on the intercom system to remark, "How does it seem to see France, for a change." We had been taking those long hauls to Germany, worrying about flak, and this was a pleasant change.

Coming back, the air traffic was something to behold. We had to dodge the Airborne Infantry. We met gliders being towed by C-47's, and got out of the way quickly. They probably couldn't see us, but we waved at them as they flew by.

We tuned in our radio to the British Broadcasting Company. They were telling about the invasion. It gave me a queer feeling, to hear the announcer telling about it, and to look down and see it going on everywhere.

(Lieutenant Rake is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Orvie J. Rake, formerly of Bingen, Wash., now lives at McLoughlin Heights, Vancouver, Wash.)

SECRET

AN EIGHTH AAF B OMBER STATION, England— Now, three survive—three from the crew of 10 Americans who—~~from~~ out the escape hatches of their Flying Fortress— jumped on a June morning into the channel below, because jumping into water, always perilous was the alternative to staying in a bomber set afire by the ground guns of Calais.

Returned to their base, the three men—2nd Lieutenant Edward F McKeague, Lock Haven, Pa.; Robert A Gallagher, Allston, Mass., and George S Penman, Brooklyn, N.Y.— pieced together the ~~the~~ story of their ill-starred bomber. They had called her "Miss Lollipop."

It was her first mission, and her last. The crew had been six times ov er Europe already, when they climbed into the bomber at dawn June 12, bound ~~for~~ for an airfield to be bombed in France. They had been handed the Fort, glist- ening just as it had come out of t he factory.

On the way back to England, "Miss Lollipop." with the remainder of the formation, had been taken off course, and headed over the French coast at Calais. Dimly, in the distance were Dover's cliffs. But below was Calais, and German batteries were in action.

The crew, through a succession of direct hits, stuck to their posts; No.4 engine was hit and on fire, and quickly No. 3 and No. 2 engines suffered hits and were ablaze. Another shell had hit the ball turret; the gunner at that post crawled up to the catwalk, his face covered with blood.

The pilot, 2nd Lt. McKeague, directed the crew to snap on parachutes and prepare to abandon the bomber. "We're at 8,000 feet--how are the fires?" asked the 23-year-old Lock Haven flier over the intercom system.

"Getting worse," replied Staff Sergeant Gallgher, the 22-year-old right waist gunner. The air speed indicator read 305 miles an hour, with the bomber starting into a dive, when the crew began to scramble out. The wounded ball turret gunner, probably unconscious, was pushed from the catwalk through the bomb bay doors, with the prayers of his friends going with him that he would regain consciousness in time to pull the 'chute cord. He did not.

The engineer, an older man characterized by the crew as being meditative, always thinking about his wife at home, "froze." Failing to respond, he was pulled out of the burning bomber. His chute did not open.

Below, two British minesweepers were at work in the channel. S/Sgt. Gallagher fell in the wake of one of the minesweepers, and Staff Sergeant George H. Penman, 21-year-old top turret gunner, splashed into the channel to one side of the same warcraft. Waiting until the bomber was at 1,000 feet, 2nd Lt. Mc Keague turned his plane east so that it would not strike the English coast, and was the last man to leave.

Bodies of the left waist gunner and toggaller were picked up in the channel, and artificial respiration failed to revive the navigator. Four ~~re~~ remained unaccounted for.

"My parachute opened just above the minesweeper," said Gallagher, former Brighton High School and Boston College student, and son of Thomas J. Farrell, 11 Gorham Street, Allston, "And as I look back, it's funny the desperate things I tried to do.

"I took off my heated boots, helmet, and even shoes, while I was floating down—Lord knows how I did it—and threw them at the minesweeper to attract their attention. I was half undressed when I got in the water. The Captain of the mine-sweeper later told me he saw me throw the ~~re~~ stuff, and thought I was crazy.

"Then, I nearly got electrocuted. Minesweepers have those long trailing wires, with very high voltage. I dropped right into the midst of them, and started grabbing for one of them. I would have grabbed at a straw. Well, lucky for me, the mine-sweeper had turned off the juice when they saw where I fell, or I would have been sizzled."

The Allston flier, who "didn't join the Navy because I couldn't swim, inflated his "mae-west," released the straps of the parachute, and waited for rescue.

S/Sgt Penman, son of Mrs. Kathrine Penman, 580 Grandview Avenue, Ridgewood, Brooklyn, fell 2,000 yards from the minesweeper. "I really got dunked," he related. "I could feel myself being tugged along by the parachute, which I couldn't get off. That is the dangerous part, you know, because it can get you all tangled up in the strands and pull you under. I didn't know the waves were so big down in the channel.

"I had to breathe in rhythm with the waves, taking a gulp of air every 10 seconds or so. My equipment felt like I weighed a ton, but I wrapped my arms around "mae-west" and kept my head above water. I was unconscious when a sailor dived into the water to get me, and told the captain I had drunk half the channel dry.

"They gave me artificial respiration, and I came to on the deck of the minesweeper, after having been in the water 25 minutes."

Second Lt McKeague, who suffered more from shock than the other two survivors, was picked up 500 yards from the English shore by a British lifeboat, after spending 45 minutes in the water.

"My 'chute barely had time to open--I guess I times it just right," said the Lock Haven man, whose wife, Mrs Beatrice L. McKeague, lives at 500 East Main Street, Lock Haven, and whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Edward LaRue McKeague, of Farrandsville, Pa. "I couldn't unbuckle my harness, when I got ~~in~~

into the water, and so I took a knife from my pocket, and out all the shroud lines, and then closed the knife, and put it back in my pocket. I can't understand how I did that.

"My boots were water-filled, and were weighing me down into the water. I was unconscious when they rescued me, but they told me I had taken my boots off. I absolutely don't remember doing it."

At the minesweeper, when S/Sgt. Gallagher, a sharp-featured, slender youth hardly fazed by the experience was pulled aboard, the captain, a portly, aged seadog, asked.

"are you hurt, chap?"

"No," said Gallagher, "but my feelings are hurt."

"Oh, you Yankees are all alike. " exclaimed the minesweeper skipper, as he ordered his craft to interrupt schedule to bring the pair of Yankee fliers to port.

S/Sgt. Gallagher, drank several rations of rum-and-tea, and went to the bridge to "take the ship back to port. " He proceeded to blow all the foghorns and whistles the minesweeper possessed.

"Whistles, whistle, every flier wants to blow the whistles," said the captain.

An ambulance was waiting for the pair when they arrived at port, to take them to an air-sea rescue hospital to recuperate.

Second Lt. McKeague, father of a five-weeks old son, Edward Paul McKeague, and 16-months-old daughter, Carol Ann, was brought to a marine hospital for treatment.

Reunited at their base, the ~~in~~three fliers compared their stories and shook hands all around.
